Description

The Philippine Declaration of Independence is a historical document proclaimed on June 12, 1898, by Emilio Aguinaldo in Kawit, Cavite, declaring the Philippines free from Spanish rule.

Why is it a Primary Source?

It is a primary source because it is an original document created during the actual declaration of Philippine independence. It is classified under Speeches and Oral Histories because it was publicly read as a formal proclamation to announce the country's independence, making it a recorded speech from a historical event.

Explanation Why I Chose This Source

I chose this source because it represents a significant event in Philippine history and helps show how the country gained independence.
